

Appendix: authordate-trad References

Barcott, Bruce. 2000. Review of The last marlin: The story of a family at sea, by Fred Waitzkin. New York Times Book Review, April 16, 2000, 7.

[barcott:review:15] Because of the absence of quotation marks around the title in the trad style, the Article and Review entry types are more or less interchangeable. This entry presents a review from a newspaper, with keyword `magazine` in `entrysubtype`, and with `\bibstring{reviewof}` in the title field. You could just write “review of” instead, but the `\bibstring` makes the entry portable across languages. Note the formatting of the reviewed book’s title using `\mkbibemph`, and the sentence-style capitalization you have to provide by hand for the trad style, because the curly braces of `\mkbibemph` protect the text from the automatic sentence-style capitalization provided by the package. `Biblatex-chicago` never modifies the capitalization of the `journaltitle`, so that field should always work properly across styles.

Donne, John. 1995. The “Anniversaries” and the “Epicedes and obsequies.” Edited by Gary A. Stringer and Ted-Larry Pebworth. Vol. 6 of The variorum edition of the poetry of John Donne, edited by Gary A. Stringer. Bloomington: Indiana Univ. Press.

[donne:var:15] A Book entry with a maintitle editor (`editor` field) and a title editor (`namea` field). Also, inside an italicized title, all other titles are put in quotation marks, and using `\mkbibquote` will automatically move appropriate punctuation inside the closing quotation mark. In the trad style, you need to provide the sentence-style capitalization yourself inside the `\mkbibquote` command.

Shapey, Ralph. 1966. Partita for violin and thirteen players, score. Special Collections. Joseph Regenstein Library, University of Chicago.

[shapey:partita:15] An example of an unpublished musical score, presented in a Misc entry (with `entrysubtype`) rather than an Audio entry, which is what you would use for a published score. Because Misc entries with an `entrysubtype` don’t provide any formatting of the title at all, when you use the trad style you may need to pay special attention to them, as here, where no quotation marks are necessary in the title.

Viv (Jerusalem, Isr.). 2015. Comment on Amlen, Hoot, January 27, 2015. Wordplay (blog). New York Times, January 26, 2015.

[viv:amlen:15] An example of a blog comment presented without the `commenton` relatedtype. Here the `crossref` to the main blog and the title field provide the necessary information, in this case requiring a different entry for the trad style. Were you to use `commenton` it would work fine for both author-date specifications. The `nameaddon` field here holds the commenter’s location, but it can also hold, especially in social media posts, a screen name or similar. The entry will appear in the list of references, and will produce a standard citation. Cf. `amlen:hoot` and `amlen:wordplay`, and also cp. `ellis:blog` and `ac:comment` for an example of how to use the new `commenton` relatedtype in this context.
